Jesus eloquently illustrates a curious detail in the Gospel parable about “The Man without the Wedding Garment”.

To understand better the parable, we should know some of the social customs In ancient Palestine, one of the social customs at wedding banquets was for the host to provide a festive garment for all the guests - it was almost like a welcome gift for parties. It could be something as simple as a colored scarf or shawl, which the guests would wear through the celebration.

With all the guests wearing this garment, an atmosphere of unity and joy was created, and the special honor of the bride and bridegroom (who were wearing different garments), was emphasized. In the parable, after the banquet has begun, the king comes in to greet the guests.

And there, he finds a guest without a wedding garment. There are only two possible reasons why a guest wouldn't have a wedding garment: either he sneaked in without being invited, or he didn't care about celebrating the wedding and just wanted to enjoy the food and drink while doing his own thing.

In either case, such a guest is not a guest at all - he has no relationship to the bride and bridegroom, and so he has no reason to be there.

And so, the king threw him out. When we try to follow Christ without accepting his will and the teaching of his Church, we are trying to get into the wedding banquet while refusing to put on the wedding garment.

This is what some public figures in our generation do when they say that they are Catholic, and then do things exactly contrary to the teachings of Christ.

Christianity is not a self-help buffet where we can pick and choose according to personal preference; it's the revelation of God, and it requires humility, obedience, and trust.

On another note, I would like to thank everyone for your time and effort to make our Parish Festival a real success!

Thank you all!

Jesús ilustra elocuentemente un detalle curioso en la parábola del Evangelio sobre “El hombre sin traje de bodas”.

Para entender mejor la parábola, debemos conocer algunas de las costumbres sociales. En la antigua Palestina, una de las costumbres sociales en los banquetes de bodas era que el anfitrión proporcionara una prenda festiva a todos los invitados; era casi como un regalo de bienvenida a las fiestas. Podría ser algo tan simple como una bufanda o un chal de colores, que los invitados usarían durante toda la celebración.

Con todos los invitados vistiendo esta prenda se creó un ambiente de unidad y alegría, y se enfatizó el honor especial de los novios (quienes vestían prendas diferentes). En la parábola, una vez iniciado el banquete, el rey entra a saludar a los invitados.

Y allí encuentra a una invitada sin traje de boda. Sólo hay dos posibles razones por las que un invitado no tendría vestido de boda: o se coló sin ser invitado, o no le importó celebrar la boda y sólo quiso disfrutar de la comida y bebida mientras hacía lo suyo.

En cualquier caso, tal invitado no es un invitado en absoluto: no tiene ninguna relación con la novia y el novio, por lo que no tiene ninguna razón para estar allí.

Y entonces el rey lo echó. Cuando intentamos seguir a Cristo sin aceptar su voluntad y las enseñanzas de su Iglesia, estamos tratando de entrar en el banquete de bodas mientras nos negamos a ponernos el traje de bodas.

Esto es lo que hacen algunas figuras públicas de nuestra generación cuando dicen que son Católicos, y luego hacen cosas exactamente contrarias a las enseñanzas de Cristo.

El cristianismo no es un buffet de autoayuda donde podemos elegir según nuestras preferencias personales; es la revelación de Dios y requiere humildad, obediencia y confianza.

Por otra parte, me gustaría agradecer a todos por su tiempo y esfuerzo para hacer de nuestro Festival Parroquial un verdadero éxito.

¡Gracias a Todos!

“Family First” / “La Familia Primero”

by Fr. Gabriel Augustine, MF

Why is a dad so important in the life of a child?

The first months after birth, the baby thinks of the mother as a merely extension of his own body. This makes sense. The child was actually part of the mother’s body for nine months. The child does not even have the mental capacity to begin working out that he is a separate being from his mother until at least sixteen months of age. The dad represents the child’s “first other” person. If the mother is symbolically, self and home, for the baby, the father is symbolically, “the world”. If the mother is faithful, the child recognizes that faith should be practiced privately. If the father is genuinely faithful, the child comes to believe that faith must be lived out in “the world”. Let today’s culture of spiritual fatherlessness end with you. Stop being satisfied raising half-hearted, passively faithful kids who fall away in the darkness of young adulthood until they have their own kids and repeat the process, mindlessly raising the next generation of spiritually fatherless, lukewarm Catholics. Let your home be the place of faithful, prayerful, godly children are raised.

From the book, “BeDADitudes” by Dr. Greg Popcak

¿Por qué es tan importante un papá en la vida de un niño?

Los primeros meses después del nacimiento, el bebé piensa en la madre como una extensión de su propio cuerpo. Esto tiene sentido. En realidad, el niño formó parte del cuerpo de la madre durante nueve meses. El niño ni siquiera tiene la capacidad mental para empezar a darse cuenta de que es un ser separado de su madre hasta al menos los dieciséis meses de edad. El padre representa la “primera otra persona” del niño. Si la madre es simbólicamente, ella misma y el hogar, para el bebé, el padre es simbólicamente “el mundo”. Si la madre es fiel, el niño reconoce que la fe debe practicarse en privado. Si el padre es genuinamente fiel, el niño llega a creer que la fe debe vivirse en “el mundo”. Deje que la cultura actual de falta de padre espiritual termine con usted. Dejen de conformarse con criar niños poco entusiastas y pasivamente fieles que caen en la oscuridad de la edad adulta hasta que tienen sus propios hijos y repiten el proceso, criando sin pensar a la próxima generación de católicos tibios y sin padre espiritual. Deje que su hogar sea el lugar donde se críen niños fieles, orantes y piadosos.
